- A. High-level prioritization mapping of the portfolio
- B. Can be used to influence the portfolio's success
- C. Corresponds to the means to the "to-be" vision
- D. Forecasts how and when the portfolio will deliver value to the organization

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

The Portfolio Roadmap represents a high-level strategic direction and information in a chronological fashion, high-level prioritization mapping of the portfolio, used to communicate the linkage between the organization strategy and portfolio management, is used by the governance processes to determine when new components should be initiated, demonstrates a clear path from the "as-is" to the "to-be" states. It contains List of components, their classes and types, Dependencies, Key milestones and deliverables; it summarizes strategic objectives, evolving aspects of the strategy by organizational areas, portfolio milestones, dependencies, challenges, and risks. The detailed identification, categorization, and ranking and scoring criteria may be derived from the portfolio roadmap. Finally, it shows the components alignment to the strategic objectives or it may highlight the gaps to be analyzed between the components and the strategic objectives
