NEW QUESTION: 1

Why might a customer consider an HP Z1 G2 All-in-One workstation over an HP Z230 SFF workstation?

- A. touch screen option
- B. smaller form factor
- C. more low profile expansion slots
- D. Thunderbolt 2 technology

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2

Which of the following factors most likely would lead a CPA to conclude that a potential audit engagement should not be accepted?

- A. Internal control activities requiring the segregation of duties are subject to management override.
- B. It is unlikely that sufficient appropriate audit evidence is available to support an opinion on the financial statements.
- C. There are significant related party transactions that management claims occurred in the ordinary course of business.
- D. Management continues to employ an inefficient system of information technology to record financial transactions.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Choice "D" is correct. If it is unlikely that sufficient appropriate audit evidence will be available to support an opinion on the financial statements, it would be pointless to conduct an audit.

Choice "A" is incorrect. The existence of significant related party transactions would not prevent the auditor from accepting an audit engagement, regardless of whether or not such transactions occurred in the ordinary course of business. The auditor would simply need to evaluate management's methods for identifying and disclosing related party transactions, and ultimately evaluate financial statement disclosure, as part of the audit.

Choice "B" is incorrect. Internal control activities are often subject to management override, but this is no reason to reject a potential audit engagement. Rather, this risk should be assessed, and audit procedures should be designed only after taking into account the assessed level of risk.

Choice "C" is incorrect. An inefficient system of information technology for recording financial transactions may not be optimal for the company, but as long as it is an effective system (i.e., as long as it provides reliable financial reporting), it will not affect the auditor's decision regarding acceptance of a new audit engagement.

NEW QUESTION: 3

You are designing a distributed application that runs on the Microsoft Azure platform.

The application must store a small amount of information that is shared cross all users and does not change frequently.

You need to configure the application to meet the requirements. Which server-side state management option should you use? (Each correct answer presents a complete solution. Choose all that apply.)

- A. Microsoft Azure application state
- B. SQL Database
- C. Profile properties of the Microsoft Azure application
- D. Microsoft Azure session state

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

SQL Database provides a relational database management system for Windows Azure and is based on SQL Server technology. With a SQL Database instance, you can easily provision and deploy relational database solutions to the cloud, and take advantage of a distributed data center that provides enterprise-class availability, scalability, and security with the benefits of built-in data protection and self-healing.

Incorrect:

Not A: Application State does not exist in Azure.

Not C: Profile properties stores personal, not global, information.

Not D: Session state is not global. Session states handles user information such as cookies, hidden fields, and query strings are some client-side options to tracking user state
