NEW QUESTION: 3

You are developing a distributed application and you need a call to a path to always return a specific JSON content deploy an Oracle Cloud Infrastructure API Gateway with the below API deployment specification.

What is the correct value for type?

- A. STOCK_RESPONSE_BACKEND
- B. HTTP_BACKEND
- C. JSON_BACKEND
- D. CONSTANT_BACKEND

Answer: A

Explanation:
Explanation

Adding Stock Responses as an API Gateway Back End:
You'll often want to verify that an API has been successfully deployed on an API gateway without having to set up an actual back-end service. One approach is to define a route in the API deployment specification that has a path to a 'dummy' back end. On receiving a request to that path, the API gateway itself acts as the back end and returns a stock response you've specified.

Equally, there are some situations in a production deployment where you'll want a particular path for a route to consistently return the same stock response without sending a request to a back end. For example, when you want a call to a path to always return a specific HTTP status code in the response.

Using the API Gateway service, you can define a path to a stock response back end that always returns the same:

HTTP status code

HTTP header fields (name-value pairs)

content in the body of the response

"type": "STOCK_RESPONSE_BACKEND" indicates that the API gateway itself will act as the back end and return the stock response you define (the status code, the header fields and the body content).

HOTSPOT

You are designing an Exchange Server 2016 organization. The organization will use a single namespace of mail.contoso.com for all client access protocols.

You plan to use load balancers.

You identify the following requirements for the load balancing solution:

The Edge Transport server log files must contain the original IP address of the SMTP hosts.

Clients must be able to connect only when they use the approved hostnames and the approved virtual directories.

You need to identify which type of load balancer meets each requirement.

What should you identify? To answer, select the appropriate options in the answer area.
