NEW QUESTION: 2

Refer to the network exhibit.

A network administrator has created a layer 2 network based on the design shown in the exhibit. Switch-A and Switch-B are distribution layer switches. Switch-C is an access layer switch. What is the best spanning tree solution for this environment?

- A. PVST+
- B. STP
- C. MSTP
- D. RSTP

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 3

Refer to the exhibit.

A network engineer changes the default native VLAN to VLAN 999. After applying the settings on the uplinks to the core switches, the switch control traffic, such as CDP and VTP, is no longer working. The standard configuration is used for each uplink. What is wrong with the configuration?

- A. The switchport mode trunk command should be first in the output.
- B. The interface is administratively down.
- C. The control traffic must be manually enabled on the new native VLAN.
- D. The native VLAN is not present on the trunk.
- E. The encapsulation type is incorrect.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 4

You have been contacted by an existing Cisco wireless networking customer. The Big Oil Service Company wants to expand their Wi-Fi network outside their facility to their Pipe and Fittings Yard. The customer is in the oil field services business and provides consumable products to the oil drilling industry. The customer has been using hand-held scanners on their fleet of order-processing vehicles to ensure that the correct parts are collected for each order. The issue that the customer is experiencing is that the processing of customer orders is taking an excessive amount of time.

Each time a new order is received, a paper pull-ticket is physically handed to the operator of an order-processing vehicle. If the specific vehicle cannot pull all the components of a customer order, they must physically hand-off the paper pull-ticket to another order-processing vehicle for completion. After the operator scans the parts to complete the order, they must drive back to the warehouse office to download the order information from the hand-held scanners into the order processing terminals. The current hand-held scanner can process only one order at a time. The company is upgrading to new scanners that operate in the 2.4 GHz spectrum and can process multiple orders simultaneously without any paper forms. The company wants you to validate a design that their internal IT staff has created for the Pipe and Fittings Yard.

(See the enclosed Conceptual Network Diagram and a Proposed AP Placement Diagram of the Big Oil Services Company facility.)

The Pipe and Fitting Yard has lights for operation at night. The lights are attached to the side of the Warehouse and Fabrication building and are on 40 foot concrete poles out in the yard and all the lights have 110V power.

The RAP location is on the side of the Warehouse and Fabrication building below the roof line and just below the exterior light on the side of the building. The RAP will draw power from this light and will have a fiber optic connection back to a switch in the MDF in the office building. All the MAPs will be attached to the light poles in various locations around the Pipe and Fittings Yard.

(See enclosed Proposed AP Placement Diagram.)

The light poles in the Pipe and Fittings Yard are concrete to resist hurricane winds. What problem will the concrete poles pose for mounting the mesh APs?

A. Each AP will require a single directional antenna to provide 360 degrees of coverage.

B. Any pole that will absorb or scatter the RF signal may require multiple Yagi antennas to provide 360 degrees of coverage.

C. This mounting scheme is typical and will not result in any coverage issues using an omnidirectional antenna/

D. A problem can result from the location where the mesh AP is mounted on the pole because the RF signal may not be able to penetrate the pole and provide 360 degrees of coverage.

Answer: D
