Answer: E

NEW QUESTION: 2

You administer a SQL Server 2008 instance. The server contains a very large database that is used by an application that is constantly available.

Users report that the server performance has degraded.

You need to use the Database Engine Tuning Advisor to improve the performance of the application.

You also need to ensure that the performance of the production server is unaffected while analyzing the workload.

What should you do?

- A. Enable the XP_MSVER stored procedure on the local server.
- B. Use the dta.exe utility on the production server along with an XML input file.
- C. Configure a test server that has a similar hardware configuration. Use the dta.exe utility on the test server along with an XML input file.
- D. Enable the XP_MSVER stored procedure on the remote server.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3

Which of the following answers is the BEST example of Risk Transference?

- A. Acceptance
- B. Not hosting the services at all
- C. Results of Cost Benefit Analysis
- D. Insurance

Answer: D

Explanation:

When we operate an organizational information system we are accepting a tolerable level of risk to allow the business functions to operate.

There may be risks you are not qualified to accept or risks you would be better off having undertaken by an outside entity.

A classic example is having your popular web server hosted by a web hosting agency which completely relieves you of the risks associated with that.

Another example is insurance where you offload the risk to an insurance agency and pay them to accept the risk.

When we transfer risk we are giving the risk to someone else to accept and it could be for a number of reasons. Expense primarily but it could also be performance, offers of better service elsewhere, legal reasons and other reasons.

The following answers are incorrect:

- Results of Cost Benefit Analysis: This might be involved in the process of Risk Mitigation but it isn't part of Risk Transference. Sorry, wrong answer.

- Acceptance: This isn't correct because accepting the risk is the opposite of transferring the risk to someone else.
- Not hosting the services at all: Sorry, this defines Risk Avoidance.
