NEW QUESTION: 1

After a company deploys their rules to production, a series of new business policies affect several of the deployed rules. The rule authors fix the rules, and the updated ruleset is deployed.

However, another business policy change makes some of the rule fixes incorrect and the original rules need to be reinstated. The rule authors ask for help from the application developer so that they do not lose their correct changes. What should the application developer do?

A. Restore the baseline so that it becomes the current state of the project so that the rule authors redo the appropriate rule changes.

B. Clone the deployment baseline to a branch, and use the Diff and Merge tool to select the correct rules to keep on the current branch of the project.

C. Unfreeze the deployment baseline so the rule authors can fix the rules again, and then redeploy the baseline.

D. Erase the current project and synchronize with Rule Designer to get the originally deployed rules.

Answer: B
