NEW QUESTION: 1

There is a logical fact table that contains Item number, store,

- time, and revenue. How would you add Number of items sold?
- A. By creating a derived measure on the logical column item number and using the count distinct function
 - B. By creating a derived measure on the logical columnItem number and using the count Function
 - C. By creating a derived metric by using the Expression Builder
 - D. By creating a derived measure based on the physical column item number and changing the aggregation method to count

Answer: D

Explanation:

A measure column is a column unlike the baseline column that has a default aggregation rule defined in the Aggregation tab of the Logical Column dialog in the repository.

Measure columns always calculate the aggregation with which they are defined.

Measures need to be defined in a logical fact. Any column with an aggregation rule is a measure.
