NEW QUESTION: 1

A telecommunications company has a substantial amount of data. This data is being created by network elements within their environment.

The company wants to change the way the network element's Call Detail Records (CDR) are stored and analyzed. The existing infrastructure consolidates all of the CDRs into a table structure, and then ingests them into a large database. Once ingested, a query engine accesses the database and performs analysis on these files. The system is functional; however, since the amount of CDRs generated will increase exponentially over the next year, the company is open to alternatives for storing and analyzing these records.

In evaluating alternatives, the key requirements are to reduce cost, the amount of storage, and the amount of time to analyze the data. The customer would like to use Hadoop to analyze the CDRs.

After you have conducted an assessment of the workflow, you have recommended an Isilon Cluster to work within the Hadoop environment.

Considering the customer's requirements, which is the best node type for the Isilon cluster?

- A. X400 with 24GB RAM and 1.6TB of SSD per node
- B. X200 with 24GB of RAM and 1.2TB of SSD per node
- C. NL400 with 48GB RAM and no SSDs per node
- D. X400 with 96GB of RAM and no SSDs per node

NEW QUESTION: 2

Scenario: A company is planning to migrate its data from a legacy system to a new cloud-based system. The legacy system uses a relational database, and the new system uses a NoSQL database. The company wants to ensure that the data is migrated accurately and efficiently. The migration process involves extracting data from the legacy system, transforming it into a format compatible with the new system, and loading it into the new system. The company is considering two options for the migration process: a manual process or an automated process. The manual process would require a team of data engineers to manually extract, transform, and load the data. The automated process would use a migration tool to automate the process. The company is also considering two options for the new system: a single-region deployment or a multi-region deployment. The single-region deployment would be simpler and cheaper, but it might not be as resilient. The multi-region deployment would be more resilient and scalable, but it might be more expensive and complex. The company is also considering two options for the data format: JSON or Avro. JSON is a simple and widely supported format, but it might be less efficient. Avro is a more efficient format, but it might be less widely supported. The company is also considering two options for the migration tool: a commercial tool or an open-source tool. The commercial tool would be easier to use and support, but it might be more expensive. The open-source tool would be cheaper, but it might require more expertise to use and support. The company is also considering two options for the migration process: a one-time migration or a continuous migration. The one-time migration would be simpler, but it might not be as flexible. The continuous migration would be more flexible, but it might be more complex. The company is also considering two options for the new system: a single-region deployment or a multi-region deployment. Explanation:

Site Recovery can replicate on-premises VMware VMs, Hyper-V VMs, physical servers (Windows and Linux), Azure Stack VMs to Azure.

Note: Site Recovery helps ensure business continuity by keeping business apps and workloads running during outages. Site Recovery replicates workloads running on physical and virtual machines (VMs) from a primary site to a secondary location. When an outage occurs at your primary site, you fail over to secondary location, and access apps from there. After the primary location is running again, you can fail back to it.
