Which of the following will BEST protect against malicious activity by a former employee?

- A. Effective termination procedures
- B. Periodic awareness training
- C. Preemployment screening
- D. Close monitoring of users

Answer: A

Explanation:

When an employee leaves an organization, the former employee may attempt to use their credentials to perform unauthorized or malicious activity. Accordingly, it is important to ensure timely revocation of all access at the time an individual is terminated. Security awareness training, preemployment screening and monitoring are all important, but are not as effective in preventing this type of situation.
