NEW QUESTION: 3

A company has 50 servers that run Windows Server 2008 R2 Enterprise or Windows Server 2003 Enterprise. You plan to deploy a large-scale wireless network. The wireless network will include 300 wireless access points (WAPs). The WAPs will use Remote Authentication Dial-In User Service (RADIUS) to authenticate devices for network access. All passwords and shared secrets used for device authentication must be changed every 14 days.

You need to enable centralized management of the RADIUS infrastructure across the WAPs.

What should you recommend? (More than one answer choice may achieve the goal. Select the BEST answer.)

- A. Deploy a Host Credential Authorization Protocol (HCAP) server and configure it as a RADIUS proxy.
- B. Deploy a Network Policy Server (NPS) and define individual RADIUS client settings with IEEE 802.1X authentication for each WAP.
- C. Deploy a Network Policy Server (NPS). Create an XML file named `ias.xml` that defines access point settings. Then run the `netsh nps import filename = "ias.xml"` command.
- D. Deploy a Network Policy Server (NPS) and define an NPS template. Configure the RADIUS client settings for each client based on the template.

Answer: D

Explanation:

template Network Policy Server (NPS) templates allow you to create configuration elements, such as Remote Authentication Dial-In User Service (RADIUS) clients or shared secrets, that you can reuse on the local NPS server and export for use on other NPS servers.

NPS templates are designed to reduce the amount of time and cost that it takes to configure NPS on one or more servers. The following NPS template types are available for configuration in Templates Management:

Shared Secrets

RADIUS Clients

Remote RADIUS Servers

IP Filters
Health Policies
Remediation Server Groups
