NEW QUESTION: 1HOTSPOT

Your network contains two servers named Server1 and Server2 that run Windows Server 2012 R2. Server1 has the Hyper-V server role installed. Server2 has the Windows Deployment Services server role installed.

On Server1, you have a virtual machine named VM1.

You plan to deploy an image to VM1 by using Windows Deployment Services (WDS).

You need to ensure that VM1 can connect to Server1 by using PXE.

Which settings should you configure on VM1? To answer, select the appropriate settings in the answer area.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

The Pre-Boot Execution Environment (PXE) provider for Windows Deployment Services provides client boot services over the network. It registers itself with the WDS Server service (the main server-side service of the Windows Deployment Services solution) and requests a remote procedure call (RPC) endpoint.

After the Windows Deployment Services server role is installed, you must configure the server by using either the Windows Deployment Services MMC snap-in or the /Initialize-Server command-line option. The PXE provider must be configured properly before it can provide client boot services over the network.

NEW QUESTION: 3

An AWS CloudFormation template creates an Amazon RDS instance. This template is used to build up development environments as needed and then delete the stack when the environment is no longer required.

The RDS-persisted data must be retained for further use, even after the CloudFormation stack is deleted.

How can this be achieved in a reliable and efficient way?

A. Write a script to continue backing up the RDS instance every five minutes

B. Use the Snapshot Deletion Policy in the CloudFormation template definition of the RDS instance

C. Create a new CloudFormation template to perform backups of the RDS instance, and run this template before deleting the stack

D. Create an AWS Lambda function to take a snapshot of the RDS instance, and manually execute the function before deleting the stack

Answer: C
