NEW QUESTION: 1

You plan to create an AlwaysOn availability group that will have two replicas in Microsoft Azure and two on premises replicas.

You need to configure the network to support the availability group listener.

Which cmdlet should you run first?

- A. New-AzureRmLoadBalancer
- B. New-AzureRmSqlDatabaseSecondary

- C. New-AzureRmSqlServerCommunicationLink
- D. New-AzureRmSqlElasticPool
- E. New-AzureRmAvailabilitySet
- F. New-AzureRmSqlServer
- G. New-AzureRmSqlDatabaseCopy
- H. New-AzureRmVM

Answer: A

Explanation:

An availability group listener is a virtual network name that clients connect to for database access. On Azure virtual machines, a load balancer holds the IP address for the listener.

The load balancer routes traffic to the instance of SQL Server that is listening on the probe port. Usually, an availability group uses an internal load balancer.

NEW QUESTION: 3

- A. boot -Z rpool/ROOT/currentBE
- B. boot -m currentBE
- C. boot -L currentBE
- D. boot rpool/ROOT/currentBE
- E. boot -a Enter the currentBE dataset name when prompted.
- F. beadm activate currentBE

Answer: F

Explanation:

You can change an inactive boot environment into an active boot environment. Only one boot environment can be active at a time. The newly activated boot environment becomes the default environment upon reboot.

How to Activate an Existing Boot Environment

1. Use the following command to activate an existing, inactive boot environment:

```
beadm activate beName

beName is a variable for the name of the boot environment to be activated.

Note the following specifications.

beadm activate beName activates a boot environment by setting the bootable pool property, bootfs, to the value of the ROOT dataset of the boot environment that is being activated.

beadm activate sets the newly activated boot environment as the default in the menu.lst file.

2. Reboot.

The newly activated boot environment is now the default on the x86 GRUB menu or SPARC boot menu.
