You need to deploy a new Microsoft SQL Server environment that meets the following requirements:

The SQL Server instance must be highly available.

There must be minimal downtime incurred during hardware failure or operating system maintenance.

All instance-level security settings and SQL Server Agent jobs must be available without additional synchronization tasks.

What should you implement?

A. a Microsoft Azure Stretch Database

B. an Always On Availability Group with secondary replicas in asynchronous-commit mode

C. log shipping

D. an Always On Availability Group with all replicas in synchronous-commit mode

E. a Windows cluster with a shared-nothing architecture

F. a file share witness

G. a Microsoft SQL Server failover cluster instance (FCI)

Answer: G

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

As part of the SQL Server Always On offering, Always On Failover Cluster Instances leverages Windows Server Failover Clustering (WSFC) functionality to provide local high availability through redundancy at the server-instance level—a failover cluster instance (FCI). An FCI is a single instance of SQL Server that is installed across Windows Server Failover Clustering (WSFC) nodes and, possibly, across multiple subnets. When there is hardware or software failure of a server, the applications or clients connecting to the server will experience downtime. When a SQL Server instance is configured to be an FCI (instead of a standalone instance), the high availability of that SQL Server instance is protected by the presence of redundant nodes in the FCI.
