NEW QUESTION: 1

Which of the following risks would BEST be assessed using qualitative risk assessment techniques?

- A. Power outage lasting 24 hours
- B. Permanent decline in customer confidence
- C. Theft of purchased software
- D. Temporary loss of e-mail due to a virus attack

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

A permanent decline in customer confidence does not lend itself well to measurement by quantitative techniques. Qualitative techniques are more effective in evaluating things such as customer loyalty and goodwill. Theft of software, power outages and temporary loss of e-mail can be quantified into monetary amounts easier than can be assessed with quantitative techniques.

NEW QUESTION: 2

An Incentive Compensation administrator has set up the 'Point Rewards' as earning type.

However, the Sales team has not received the cash compensation during the payout processing.

Which statement is true to identify the root cause of the error?

- A. The administrator has not defined the conversion factor for the 'Point Rewards' to convert into monetary earnings.
- B. The administrator must select the 'Convert into monetary earning' check box while defining the non-monetary earning type 'Point Rewards'. This allows IC to calculate incentive into cash compensation.
- C. The administrator has not associated the participants with the plan components where earning type is 'Point Rewards'.
- D. The administrator must have defined 'Point Rewards' as a monetary earning type.
- E. The 'Point Rewards' is a non monetary earning type and the Oracle FUSION IC cannot calculate the cash compensation because the earning type is a non-monetary earning type.

Answer: B
