NEW QUESTION: 1

You work as a Network Administrator for XYZ CORP. The company has a TCP/IP-based network environment. The network contains Cisco switches and a Cisco router. A user is unable to access the Internet from Host B.

You also verify that Host B is not able to connect to other resources on the network. The IP configuration of Host B is shown below: Which of the following is the most likely cause of the issue?

- A. There is an IP address conflict on the network.
- B. An incorrect default gateway is configured on Host B.
- C. The IP address of Host B is not from the correct IP address range of the network.
- D. An incorrect subnet mask is configured on Host B.

Answer: D

Explanation:

According to the network diagram, the IP address range used on the network is from the class C private address range. The class C IP address uses the following default subnet mask: 255.255.255.0 The question specifies that the subnet mask used in Host B is 255.255.0.0, which is an incorrect subnet mask.

NEW QUESTION: 2

Refer to the exhibit. You have received a trouble ticket stating that calls to international numbers are failing. To place an international call, users dial the access code "9," followed by "011," the country code, and the destination number. After entering the debug isdn q931 command on the MGCP gateway, you have the user attempt the call again.

Based on the debug output, what is the most likely cause of this problem?

- A. The TON is incorrect.
- B. The circuit is not configured correctly or has a physical layer issue.
- C. Cisco Unified CallManager is not stripping the access code before sending the call to the gateway.
- D. The gateway dial peer needs to prefix "011" to the called number so the PSTN knows this is an international call.
- E. The user's CSS does not permit international calls.

Answer: B

Explanation:

This question is to test the troubleshooting of the call failure via the debug information. According to the debug information, the channel requested by the call is unavailable.

There are two reasons:

- 1.The channels used by two endpoints are different;
- 2.Because of the configuration error, the connection cannot be established. Cause No. 44 - requested circuit/channel not available [Q.850] This cause is returned when the circuit or channel indicated by the requesting entity cannot be provided by the other side of the interface.
