NEW QUESTION: 4

Your network contains an Active Directory domain.
The domain contains two file servers.
The file servers are configured as shown in the following table:

You create a Group Policy object (GPO) named GPO1 and you link GPO1 to OU1.

You configure the advanced audit policy.

You discover that the settings are not applied to Server1.

The settings are applied to Server2.

You need to ensure that access to the file shares on Server1 is audited.

What should you do?

- A. On Server1, run auditpol.exe and specify the /set parameter.
- B. From Active Directory Users and Computers, add Server1 to the Event Log Readers group.
- C. On Server1, run secedit.exe and specify the /configure parameter.
- D. From GPO1, configure the Security Options.
- E. From Active Directory Users and Computers, modify the permissions of the computer account for Server1.

Answer: A

What are the differences in auditing functionality between versions of Windows?

Basic audit policy settings are available in all versions of Windows since Windows 2000 and can be applied locally or by using Group Policy. Advanced audit policy settings were introduced in Windows Vista and Windows Server 2008, but the settings can only be applied by using logon scripts. In Windows 7 and Windows Server 2008 R2, advanced audit policy settings can be configured and applied by using local and domain Group Policy settings.
