NEW QUESTION: 1

- A. Option C

- C. Option D

D. Option A

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

When the user creates a new EBS volume or restores a volume from the snapshot, the back-end storage blocks are immediately allocated to the user EBS. However, the first time when the user is trying to access a block of the storage, it is recommended to either be wiped from the new volumes or instantiated from the snapshot (for restored volumes). Before the user can access the block. This preliminary action takes time and can cause a 5 to 50 percent loss of IOPS for the volume when the block is accessed for the first time. To avoid this it is required to pre warm the volume. Pre-warming an EBS volume on a Linux instance requires that the user should unmount the blank device first and then write all the blocks on the device using a command, such as "dd".

Box 1: Zone-redundant storage (ZRS)
Zone-redundant storage (ZRS) replicates your data synchronously across three storage clusters in a single region. LRS would not remain available if a data center in the region fails
GRS and RA GRS use asynchronous replication.
Box 2: StorageV2 (general purpose V2)
ZRS only support GPv2.

NEW QUESTION: 4

Given the following spot and forward rates, how much should an investor pay for a 3-year, annual zero-coupon bond with a face value of $1,000?

The investor should pay approximately:

- A. $886.
- B. $724.
- C. $720.
- D. $884.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

The yield to maturity on an N-year zero coupon bond is equivalent to the N-year spot rate. Thus, to determine the present value of the zero-coupon bond, we need to calculate the 3-year spot rate.

Using the formula: $(1 + Z)^3 = (1 + 1f_0) + (1 + 1f_1) + (1 + 1f_2)$

Where Z = spot rate and nfm = The n year rate m periods from today, (1f0 = the 1 year spot rate now) $(1 + Z)^3 = (1.035) * (1.115) * (1.1975)$ $Z = 1.38191/3 - 1 = 0.11386$, or 11.39%

Then, the value of the zero coupon bond = $1,000 / (1.1139)^3 = 723.62$, or approximately $724.

or, using a financial calculator, N = 3, I/Y = 11.39, FV = 1,000, PMT = 0, Compute PV = 723.54, or approximately $724.
