Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Criticality of assets is often influenced by the business criticality of the data to be protected and by the scope of the impact upon the organization as a whole. For example, the loss of a network backbone creates a much greater impact on the organization as a whole than the loss of data on a typical user's workstation.

NEW QUESTION: 2

Your network contains a DNS server named DC1 that runs Windows Server 2008 R2. The network uses a network ID of 10.1.1.0/24. You open the DNS console on Server1 as shown in the exhibit. (Click the Exhibit button.)

You need to ensure that all client computers can resolve the IPv4 addresses of computers on the network to fully qualified domain names (FQDNs).

What should you do?

- A. Delete the "." (root) zone.
- B. Convert the 10.1.1.in-addr.arpa zone to a standard primary zone.
- C. Create a zone named 1.1.10.in-addr.arpa.
- D. Create a zone named 10.1.in-addr.arpa.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION: 3

Which of the following functions provides an output which cannot be reversed and converts data into a string of characters?

- A. Steganography
- B. Block ciphers
- C. Hashing
- D. Stream ciphers

Answer: C

Explanation:

Hashing refers to the hash algorithms used in cryptography. It is used to store data, such as hash tables one of its characteristics is that it must be one-way - it is not reversible.

Incorrect Answers:

- B. A stream cipher is similar to a block cipher in that they are both symmetric methods of cryptography. The difference is that with a stream cipher the data is encrypted one bit, or byte, at a time whereas with a block cipher the algorithm works on chunks of data.
- C. Steganography is the process of hiding a message in a medium such as a digital image, audio file, or other file. In theory, doing this prevents analysts from detecting the real message. You could encode your message in another file or message and use that file to hide your message.
- D. A block cipher is a symmetric method in cryptography that encrypts data in chunks; very similar to stream ciphers.
