NEW QUESTION: 1

Refer to the exhibit. A new TAC engineer comes to you for advice. The engineer wants to configure RIPv2- OSPF two-way redistribution while avoiding routing loops. Which two additions to the router B1 configuration should the engineer make? (Choose two.)

- A. access-list 40 deny 172.16.1.0 0.0.0.255 access-list 40 permit any router rip redistribute ospf 100 metric 5 distribute-list 40 out ospf 100
- B. access-list 15 deny 10.1.1.0 0.0.0.63 access-list 15 permit any route-map redis-rip deny 10 match ip address 15 route-map redis-rip permit 20 router ospf 100 redistribute rip route-map redis-rip subnets
- C. ip prefix-list rip-to-ospf permit 10.1.1.8/25 ge 26 le 28 route-map redis-rip deny 20 match ip address prefix-list rip-to-ospf router ospf 100 redistribute rip route-map redis-rip subnets
- D. ip prefix-list rip_routes permit 172.16.1.16/25 ge 26 le 28 route-map redis-ospf deny 10 match ip address prefix-list rip_routes router rip redistribute ospf 10 route-map redis-ospf subnets

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Explanation B1 is not the only router that redistributes between RIP & OSPF. The "small" router below B1 can be configured for this task too so B1 can try to redistribute networks advertised by that "small" router again. Therefore it is necessary to filter out networks that have been advertised by the "small" router. For example, we need to prevent network 172.16.1.0/24 from advertised back into RIPv2 or network 10.1.1.0/26 from advertised back into OSPF. Notice that all networks in OSPF domain (including 10.1.1.8/30, 10.1.1.12/30, 10.1.1.48/28, 10.1.1.32/28) can be summarized as 10.1.1.0/26 and all networks in RIP domain (including 172.16.1.24/30, 172.16.1.20/30, 172.16.1.32/28, 172.16.1.48/28) can be summarized as 172.16.1.0/24 -> answers A & D are correct.

In answer B, the command "ip prefix-list rip_routes permit 172.16.1.16/25 ge 26 le 28 means:

First check the first 25 bits of the address -> this will allow addresses from 172.16.1.0 to

+

If those match then check the subnet mask, which in this case can be GREATER THAN or EQUAL to 26 bits & LESS THAN or EQUAL to 28 bits -> meaning that /26, /27, /28 subnet masks would match.

For example, networks 172.16.1.0/26; 172.16.1.16/28 would match (but notice networks 172.16.1.0/25; 172.16.1.128/26 wouldn't).

In the "ip prefix-list rip_routes permit 172.16.1.16/25 ge 26 le 28, the prefix-list "rip_routes" only covers networks 172.16.1.32/28 & 172.16.1.48/28 but can't cover networks 172.16.1.24/30 & 172.16.1.20/30. Also, the OSPF process in the "redistribute" command should be 100, not 10.

Same problem as answer B, the prefix-list in answer C can't cover networks 10.1.1.8/30 & 10.1.1.12/30 .
172.16.1.127

NEW QUESTION: 2
