Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 4

You are developing an ASP.NET MVC application. Devices that use many different browsers will use the application.

You have the following requirements:

You need to configure the application.

Which two actions should you perform? Each correct answer presents part of the solution.

- A. Use JavaScript to evaluate the window.innerWidth and window.innerHeight properties.
- B. Use CSS media queries to target screen size, device orientation, and other browser capabilities.
- C. Use CSS to target the HTML element on each page. Set the values of the width and height properties to 100%.
- D. Set the value of the width property for the viewport meta tag to device-width.

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

B: If you want the viewport width to match the device's physical pixels, you can specify the following:

```
< meta name="viewport" content="width=device-width">
```

For this to work correctly, you must not explicitly force elements to exceed that width (e.g., using a width attribute or CSS property), otherwise the browser will be forced to use a larger viewport regardless.

D: Media queries in CSS3 extend the CSS2 media types idea: Instead of looking for a type of device, they look at the capability of the device.

Media queries can be used to check many things, such as:

width and height of the viewport

width and height of the device

orientation (is the tablet/phone in landscape or portrait mode?)

resolution

Using media queries are a popular technique for delivering a tailored style sheet to tablets, iPhone, and Androids.
