Explanation:

Box 1: show advanced options

Advanced configuration options are displayed by first setting show advanced option to 1.

Box 2: max worker threads

SQL Server uses the native thread services of the operating systems so that one or more threads support each network that SQL Server supports simultaneously, another thread handles database checkpoints, and a pool of threads handles all users. The default value for max worker threads is 0. This enables SQL Server to automatically configure the number of worker threads at startup. The default setting is best for most systems.

Explanation:

A contained database is a database that is isolated from other databases and from the instance of SQL Server that hosts the database. SQL Server helps user to isolate their database from the instance in 4 ways.

Much of the metadata that describes a database is maintained in the database. (In addition to, or instead of, maintaining metadata in the master database.) All metadata are defined using the same collation.

User authentication can be performed by the database, reducing the databases dependency on the logins of the instance of SQL Server.

The SQL Server environment (DMV's, XEvents, etc.) reports and can act upon containment information.
