- B. SAS and iSCSI support hybrid network
- C. FC and iSCSI does not support hybrid network
- D. ISCSI support only a single network

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION: 2

Which two statements about the BGP community attribute are true? (Choose two.)

- A. A router can change a received community attribute before advertising it to peers.
- B. A prefix can support only one community attribute.
- C. It is an optional transitive BGP attribute.
- D. It is a well-known, discretionary BGP attribute.
- E. Routers send the community attribute to all BGP neighbors automatically.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

A community is a group of prefixes that share some common property and can be configured with the BGP community attribute. The BGP Community attribute is an optional transitive attribute of variable length. The attribute consists of a set of four octet values that specify a community. The community attribute values are encoded with an Autonomous System (AS) number in the first two octets, with the remaining two octets defined by the AS. A prefix can have more than one community attribute. A BGP speaker that sees multiple community attributes in a prefix can act based on one, some or all the attributes. A router has the option to add or modify a community attribute before the router passes the attribute on to other peers.

NEW QUESTION: 3

When deploying redundant route reflectors in BGP, which attribute can you configure on the route reflector to allow routes to be identified as belonging to the same group?

- A. ORIGINATOR_ID
- B. CLUSTER_ID
- C. ROUTER_ID
- D. PEER_GROUP

Answer: B

Explanation:

Together, a route reflector and its clients form a cluster. When a single route reflector is deployed in a cluster, the cluster is identified by the router ID of the route reflector. The `bgp cluster-id` command is used to assign a cluster ID to a route reflector when the cluster has one or more route reflectors. Multiple route reflectors are deployed in a cluster to increase redundancy and avoid a single point of failure. When multiple route reflectors are configured in a cluster, the same cluster ID is assigned to all route reflectors. This allows all route reflectors in the cluster to recognize updates from peers in the same cluster and reduces the number of updates that need to be stored in BGP routing tables.
