NEW QUESTION: 4

Lab Sim

The Secure-X company has recently successfully tested the 802.1X authentication deployment using the Cisco Catalyst switch and the Cisco ISEv1.2 appliance. Currently, each employee desktop is connected to an 802.1X enabled switch port and is able to use the Cisco AnyConnect NAM 802.1Xsupplicantto log in and connect to the network.

Currently, a new testing requirement is to add a network printer to the Fa0/19 switch port and have it connect to the network. The network printer does not support 802.1X supplicant. The Fa0/19 switch port is now configured to use 802.1X authentication only.

To support this network printer, the Fa0/19 switch port configuration needs to be edited to enable the network printer to authenticate using its MAC address. The network printer should also be on VLAN 9.

Another network security engineer responsible for managing the Cisco ISE has already per- configured all the requirements on the Cisco ISE, including adding the network printer MAC address to the Cisco ISE endpoint database and etc...

Your task in the simulation is to access the Cisco Catalyst Switch console then use the CLI to:

- Enable only the Cisco Catalyst Switch Fa0/19 switch port to authenticate the network printer using its MAC address and:

- Ensure that MAC address authentication processing is not delayed until 802.1Xfails

- Ensure that even if MAC address authentication passes, the switch will still perform 802.1X authentication if requested by a 802.1X

supplicant

- Use the required show command to verify the MAC address authentication on the Fa0/19 is successful

The switch enable password is Cisco

For the purpose of the simulation, to test the network printer, assume the network printer will be unplugged then plugged back into the Fa0/19 switch port after you have finished the required configurations on the Fa0/19 switch port.

Note: For this simulation, you will not need and do not have access to the ISE GUI To access the switch CLI, click the Switch icon in the topology diagram
